How does Engineering help you in school and in life?

In my opinion we learned that failure is okay and engineering is a thing the whole world needs. Engineering helps you in life and school because engineering teaches you that it is okay to fail and that helps in life because that encourages you to never give up.